ABSTRACT

An illuminated wine chiller, having a substantially transparent shell having an interior cavity extending downwardly for supporting a bottle of wine in a vertical position while surrounded by ice. The wine chiller has an illumination source within the shell for creating colored light and causing the shell to glow. The illumination source allows the user to vary the color of the illumination light and can automatically vary the color of the illumination light over time.